Coach Jack Swartz

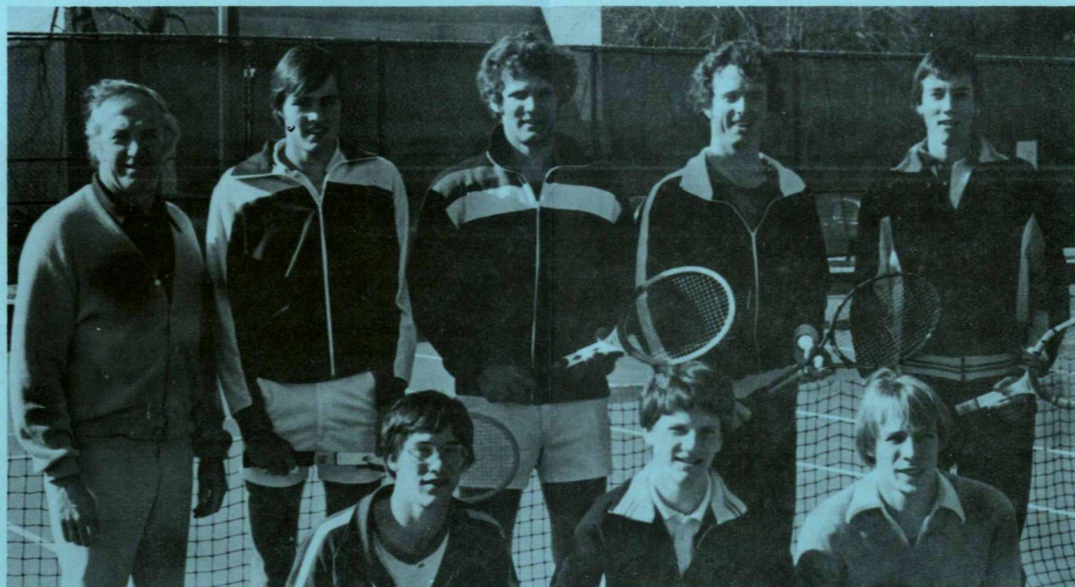

Dr. Jack Swartz, Wheaton's athletic director and assistant football coach, returns for his fourth year as head tennis coach.

Swartz previously guided the Crusader netters from 1960-68, posting an enviable 91-51 mark. His 1961 squad had an impressive 16-0 record and two of his teams placed high at NCAA College Division Tournaments.

During that same time period, Swartz was busy coaching the Crusader gridgers to a 41-30 mark before resigning to pursue his doctorate in 1968. He returned to Wheaton in 1972 and currently serves as an Associate Professor of Physical Education in addition to his duties in coaching and administration in the athletic department.

Season Outlook

Hopes for the Crusaders to recapture the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin crown which Wheaton lost to Augustana last year rest mainly on a small core of returning lettermen and some good freshmen talent.

Juniors John Ortberg and Paul Jorden are the most experienced of the Wheaton netters this season. Ortberg, who was runner-up in the CCIW at number two as a freshman, will be moving to the number one position this season. Jorden won the conference championship at number six his freshman year and then captured the number five position last year at the CCIW meet.

Sophomore Jon Hollansworth and junior Joe Hicks are the only two Crusaders besides Ortberg and Jorden to experience varsity competition. Hollansworth was second in the CCIW at number three a year ago and Hicks took runner-up in the sixth slot.

The Crusaders claim nine freshmen on their roster this season, all seeking a chance to help Wheaton's tennis program. Norm Peterson, Eric Fowler, and Brad Smith appear to be the top prospects in pre-season workouts.

Wheaton College is a coeducational college of liberal arts and sciences which combines high scholastic standards with Christian faith and practice. It is located in a residential suburb 25 miles west of Chicago. It is an independent, non-denominational school owned and operated by a self-perpetuating board of trustees.

Wheaton college aims to offer each student a liberal education by introducing him to the organized fields of human learning and presenting the Christian theistic view of the world, of man, and of man's culture in the light of Biblical and natural revelation.

Enrollment at Wheaton is currently about 1900 undergraduate and 150 graduate students who annually represent nearly all 50 states, some 30 countries and approximately 30 church denominations.

At Wheaton, athletics is part of the total educational experience of the student. There is appreciation for the character and physical values that are inherent in athletic competition, as evidenced by the 13-sport intercollegiate program for men, the five-sport intercollegiate program for women, and the active intramural programs available to all students.

The unique dimension to Wheaton athletics is the Christian commitment of the athletes and coaches. While athletics has intrinsic value, Wheaton's students and coaches consider their involvement in athletics to be a vital expression of Christian faith and life. A deeper meaning to the athletic experience is shared with teammates and opponents, with keen awareness of the stewardship of the physical and spiritual gifts with which God has endowed each athlete.

Experience Returning

Last year's Crusader CCIW championship team will return five out of the top six players. Their only loss will be Jim Galvin who was Wheaton's #4 singles and one of the #2 doubles.

Leading the way once again for Wheaton will be junior captain Clay Weatherly. The Alabama native finished the 1976 season with a 12-0 schedule play record while playing in the #1 position, including taking the individual CCIW crown in that spot.

Others returning from last year's top six include sophomores John Ortberg, Bill Stam, Paul Jordan, and senior Dan Barkley. The addition of freshmen John Hollansworth and Monte Sutton should also prove to be another strengthening factor.

Last spring the Crusaders won the CCIW Championship held here at Wheaton. This year it looks as though they are favored to do it again. They also went on to place 6th in the NCAA Division III finals as both Clay Weatherly and John Ortberg made it into the final sixteen.
